Agriculture Faces Test in England

British Laborites Propose Drastic Farm Regulation

By BAUKHAGE News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Sireet, N. W., | good husbandry require the farmer Washington, D. C. WASHINGTON.—One by one Brit-sin is nationalizing her basic indus-

What about farming? Agriculture was Britain's largest industry right up to 1939 but before the war Britain time rations for their own people, plus the Allied armies and refugees, within their borders. Government control was strict but it worked. And the British with their socialist government do not intend to let it slip back if regulation can stop it. To that end a bill is now before par-Unment which would bring the American farmer down to Washington with a pitchfork in each hand. The "two pillars" of the new gov-ernment policy are "stability and efnciency." The agriculture bill would create stability by guaranteeing prices. It provides:

(1) That the prices and other market factors of wheat, barley, oats, rye, pointoes and sugar beets be fixed in the year before these crops are to be harvested.

(2) Prices and other factors affeeting fat stock, milk and eggs, to be announced for a period of one year and also minimum prices and other conditions, including quantiiles, for a further period of two years. Consequently the producer of fat stock, milk and eggs will know nctual prices and other conditions of sale a year in advance, and minimum prices and conditions (which include any quantitative limitations) for two years ahead.

There is planning and regulation for you! "Stability, however," anya Britnin's minister of agriculture, "is not enough." And then he goes after efficiency with foot, horse and guns. Two requisites for efficiency are promotion of research into farming problems and an organization which will provide the individual farmer with technical advice. Very good. The United States government does a pretty good job on that score. The point is: What does the British government ask in return for what it intends to offer?

to maintain his holding at a reasonable standard of efficient production, bearing in mind cleanliness of the land, maintenance of fertility and freedom from disease and pests. The rules of good estate management regulre the landowner to maintain his estate with adequate buildings, drainage, ditches and hedges, so that the occupier can be an et-Scient producer."

And that is not merely suggested in the bill, it is required. The farmer or the landowner will live up to these conditions or he will lose his land. The first step against an offender is to place them under formal supervision - after they have had a chance to state their case.

** The next step will be to issue specinc instructions as to what is to be done-again giving the offender the opportunity to state his case. If the offender is a landowner and the expense of carrying out the orders exceeds the annual rent of the land, he can appeal to the agricultural The third step would be dispos-

The law doesn't end there. It deals with the past and the future as well as the present. Experiments will be made to adjust farm boundarles made many hundreds of years ago and the intent is to prevent the splitting up of farms into uneconom-

Three weeks passed before the editor received a second letter: "Thank you for your kind advice," it read. "The hen remained on the eggs three weeks, and there were no chickens hatched. As I didn't care for ducks, I took her off the nest and sold the eggs."

READY STUFFED

A newly-married man returning nome from work found that his wife had just cooked a chicken for dinner. Eyeing the fowl over with a suspicious sniff, he said;

"It looks lovely, dear, but it smells mighty queer. What have you stuffed it with?'

"I haven't stuffed it with anything," answered his wife, wide-eyed, "The chicken wasn't hollow."

CHAPTER VIII

She might as well catch the aftermoon bus, but she would have lunch first and then try calling Spang again to say good-by.

Few people were in the diningroom, a few commercial travelers, several lonely looking women whom Jill catalogued as officers' wives, a child perched in a high chair and being coaxed to drink milk by a wan-looking mother, and at a table secluded near a window was the blonde Mrs. Calvert.

Jill went straight to her table. "How do you do?" she said cool-"I'm Jill McFarlane, we met last night. Mind if I sit here? I have a phobia about eating alone.

"Delighted, I'm sure." Mrs. Calvert was cool, too, and definitely unenthusiastic, "I'm practically finished, however. My lunch-" she made a little gesture toward the half consumed salad before her, "is usually unimportant."

"A few vitamins and no calorles?" Jill took a chair. "You're one of the courageous women. I'm a farm gal myself, with an outrageous appetite."

'You're very fortunate to be able to indulge it. Few women can and keep the respect of their mirrors," "I'll have the jellied soup, stuffed crab, and some coffee, please," Jill told the hovering waitress, then leaned her chin on her palms, "You live here, Mrs. Calvert? In the ho-

Mrs. Calvert was studying her eyebrows in a little mirror, disciplining the curves with a longnailed forefinger.

"I'm a camp follower," she said. "I followed my husband here-my former husband. Then he was transferred back to the Islands, and I decided that I couldn't endure being married to him any more. So I'm staying because when you're entirely alone places don't matter." "And with all the boys at the field so near there's less chance to be lonely, of course?"

Mrs. Calvert's eyes sharpened a little, but her voice kept its cool smoothness.

"They're such nice boys, all of them. I was an officer's wife, badly cramped by a lot of taboos and military procedure, but now that pointment creep into it. "Sorry I I'm free I enjoy being with these have to go without seeing you, boys of my own age. My husband | Spang," was years older," she added, "and definitely a home tyrant, I shouldn't talk about him, poor Win, he may be in some ghastly jungle now in horrible danger!"

give so much time to Richard. Ric has always been more or less of a enlisted."

"Ricky's getting on well, I'm sure. Though, of course, military life is difficult for men with his background. Men who've been accustomed to freedom and having the best, of course. But they adjust We have themselves beautifully. to admire their spirit."

"I hope Ric decides to stay on in the army." Jill salted the vapid her that Ric hadn't any money, and soup, poked at rubbery lumps in it, she looked at me with those cynical "He hates our tarm, and he hasn't eyes of hers and didn't believe a shown any aptitude for anything else. And, of course, he hasn't any I hate to tell Mother," money.

"He told me about your farm. It must be a lovely place-quite a show place, he said. I was so interested in hearing about it."

Spang Calls to Say Good-By "It's a pig farm." Jill was blunt. "Ric must have let his imagination get the best of him once he got away from it. When he's there he loathes everything about it. We have to work awfully hard to keep it going. My mother works all day in overalls and a man's shirt. I got this blister hoeing beans," She exhibited her palm. "Our farm help have gone off to the army, and even my eighty-year-old grandfather has to work, so if Ric has been embroidering tales to you about green fawns and pedigreed horses and stuff, just write them off as a homesick boy's wishful thinking."

Mrs. Calvert's eyes were masked behind carefully trained eyelids. She put away her lipstick and the little micror. She reached for her check and picked up her purse with fingers that clutched a fifte. "Nice to have seen you again, Good-by," she remarked, rlaing.

She walked away briskly, without looking back. Jill, watching her receding shoulders, felt a heavy torcated in me at all. He merely sense of fallure, a feeling that she said that he knew a girl once in

She's quite sure that Ric is a rich woman's son and that I'm a meddling sister with my knife out for greedy throats like hers, Jill told herself. She put Ric out of her mind, grimly, and thought only of Spang, wondering if she would see him again.

Everything lovely that she owned she had put on this morning, She had turned a hundred times before the mirror, changed her lipstick twice, worried at her nails, and pinned and repinned her hair into exactly the right sort of halo so that every curl should shimmer with allure, when at last the telephone rang. Spang sald, "Hello, Jill, I was airaid you might have checked

"Oh, no-I may not go for hours. Will I see you again, Spang?"

"Sorry," he said slowly, while Jill's heart grew heavier, "can't make it today. They're running in Sunday classes on me, I'll be tled up all day. But I had a moment,

"I'm quite delirious about the army-hadn't you heard?"

"We'll put up a plaque for him somewhere," Jill answered, making her voice light, not letting disap-

"I did hear a rumor, but I thought it might be propaganda. Morale family problem. My mother was stuff, keep the boys happy, keep em terribly worried about him until he singing while they're marching off and shoulders."

A Warning

Against Mackey

She sald, "Spang, I ate lunch with that Mrs. Calvert today. I simply erashed in, and I know now that I was awfully stupld about it. I told word of it. It worries me, and yet

"If Ric gets himself into a mess let him wiggle out of it," counseled Hand at Cupid Spang. "Might be good for him, Maybe he's depended on other people too much already"

"But it might break my mother's heart. I have to think of that, Spang. And she has had enough heartbreak for one lifetime."

'I hadn't thought of that," Spang sald.

"You couldn't do anything about getting him moved to another post, could you, Spang!"

"No, I couldn't, Jill. I'm only a technical officer here, and those things are handled by personnel boards with a lot of red-tape involved. Mackey's on that board. and he keeps the red-tape tightened up plenty stiff. I can't even talk to Ric, he wouldn't listen,"

Jill said, "By the way, I saw that Captain Mackey last night after you left me, Spang. He came up and introduced himself. He thought that he once knew my mother,"

Spang did not speak for a breath. Then he said, soberly, "That's an and watching them open graves, to old line, Jill. All the old he-wolves in war things like that happen." spring it when they get their eyes on a pretty young girl. Fatherly approach. Knock em off their

"Oh, I'll be going home right away now, on the afternoon bus. You don't know when you're leaving, Spang?" "No, I don't know, and even it did, I couldn't tell you, Jill-and you know better than to ask,"

"You'll be fighting, won't you?" "Gosh, I hope sol I'm tired of this academic stuff. The Japs haven't read any books, but look how they fight!"

"Will you write to me, Spang?" "If I have a chance, I will. Will you answer if I write?"

"How silly! Of course I'll answer. Pages and pages, all about the pigs." "You can tell me what you're doing." What would she be doing? Waiting! Hung up by the heartstrings, tormented by the inching of the hours! Oh, Spang, please let me have love to keep, a fire to warm myself by when the dark comes too

But though he sald good-by half dozen times, he did not speak of love. He hung up, with the same little flick as the salute he always gave when he left her.

She breathed, "I love you, Spang." But the click of the telephone being disconnected left the whisper hanging in air, unheard, unanswered.

After that she cried. Long and wretchedly, all alone, with the hot afternoon passing. The yellow leaves began falling from the apple trees and the sumac burned red against the fences. Jill crossed her booted leg over the saddle. The mare, Dave's new saddle mare, was moist and lazy.

"I hate September!" Jill abruptly. "It's a stupid month, that doesn't mean anything. It isn't sulks through thirty days, All the ard Hughes in Mexico City, watchflowers are tired, but they won't dle, and the whole world looks shabby. People look shabby, too, in fady summer clothes or fall things that show dust and are smothery. If ever I do something completely mad and unforgivable it will be because it's September and can't bear it." Dave did not look at her. Julia was worried about Jill, her growing irritation, her restlessness, her impatience with everything. "That isn't the answer, Dave," Julia had said, "Not trumped-up jobs that she sees through instantly and does with that air of awful patience and thinly concealed contempt." She knew so well that there was no answer to the problem of Jill. The bloom of love, fruity and glowing, was upon Jill now, she was ripe with it, gilded with it, and every nerve and veln were vibrant to war with blisters on their beels with readiness, and she had not been chosen. Her loneliness was made brackish by the bitter distillation of disappointment, and tears too fiercely contained canker into acid and weaken the strongest spir-

> "Take her places, Dave," Julia had pleaded. "I can't do anything for her. To a woman in Jill's state of mind other women are utterly obnuxious, even women they love."

Jill Tries Her

So Dave and Jill rode the bills on this first Sunday in September, and when Jill had spoken her tleade against the sun-drunk weather she kicked her toe back into the stire rup and jerked the mare's head up and sold in a sharp and harsh voice, "Dave, why don't you marry my mother?"

Dave let his reins fall slack, and the horse reached instantly, unreproved, for a sassafras bough, "Because," he said slowly, "she believes that she's still married to your father." Jill elicked her teeth. "You know that hope is fantastic, Dave."

"Yes, Jill, I know." "I never saw my father," she went on. "He was in France when her out for a soda. I was born. Mother doesn't even know, for sure, that he ever knew that I was born. She wrote letters but never had any answers. The letters didn't come back, nothing came back. It's grisly to think about, Grandfather going over there and watching them open graves, but

Converting Life Insurance

Veterans' Service Bureau has received numerous questions concerning national service life insurance, how to convert when the first fiveyear level plan expires, and the cost of reconversion,

So for the information of all, here are some facts relative to this insurance for veterans of World War

The term plan provides only for insurance protection at a fixed rate and has no cash, loan or paid-up value. It provides the maximum amount of temporary protection at the lowest cost. These policies were originally issued on the five-year level, but the term has been extended for three more years, or eight years in all. Hence all term policles issued prior to January 1 1948, may be continued in their original form for eight years from the date of Issue. They need not be converted to a permanent plan before the expiration of that eightyear period.

Term policies issued after December 31, 1945, must be converted into permanent insurance within five Veterans' administration years. urges veterans to continue their term insurance during their readjustment to civilian life and to convert only after they have become reestablished and know what their financial capabilities and insurance needs will be. So every veteran has until October, 1948, at the least, to convert to a permanent policy and many considerably longer than that, Term insurance may be converted wholly or in part to ordinary life, 30-payment life, 20-payment life, endowment at age 65, endowment at age 60, and 20-year endowment.

National service life insurance bears the lowest possible premium rates on all forms because the gov ernment bears the entire cost of administration and pays all losses traceable to the extra hazard of milltary or naval service. Every dollar in premiums is held in trust and invested at interest for eventual return in benefits to policy holders or their beneficiaries.

Approximately three million veterans have kept their insurance in force after discharge. More than 10 million have let their insurance lapse, but they can be reinstated by paying only two monthly premlums and meeting health requirements. Terminal leave bonds may be used to pay premiums. An example of the low premiums: At age 25 for the five-year level term, 67 cents per month per $1,000; ordinary life, $1.37 per month per $1,000; 30-pay life, $1 67 per month per $1,000; 20-pay life, $2 12 per month per $1,000; endowment at 63. $1.07 per month per $1,000; endowment at 60, $1.89 per month per $1,000: 20-year endowment, $3.48 per month per $1,000. Rates are higher

MANY COSTS BESIDES LABOR INCLUDED IN SALES PRICE

LABOR is inclined to consider the difference between what the worker is paid and what the customer is charged as the profit made by a plant. A worker acquaintance said to me he had been shown a bill from the company he worked for to one of its customers. "The company pays me $1.50 an hour," he said, "but they charge their customers $3 an hour for my time. I am entitled to at least a part of that additional $1,50 the company takes as profit."

I attempted to show him that $3 charge covered many things other than his time, but did not make much impression. I told him he had to have a place in which to work, and the zent had to be paid by the customer. The tools and equipment with which he worked must be replaced as they were broken or worn out, and the customer provided the money to replace them. I explained to him, as best I could, all the many items of overhead; the salesman who sollcited the order, the management who planned the operations, the clerical force, the foreman, the city. state and federal taxes, the insurance, light and power, and many other items, all of which are a part of the final cost. Some portion of all of them in addltion to the $1.50 wages he was paid were a part of that $3 an hour charge to the customer. Then, too, those who had provided the funds for the original purchase of the tools and equipment with which he worked, an average of more than $9,000 for every employed worker in the United States, was entitled to some compensation for the use of his money. What he rethe very small margin of what was called profit in that charge of $3 an hour.

Management expects labor to accept its unsupported statements as to the profits a company is making, or at most it expects labor to understand the intricacies of a balance sheet. Undoubtedly labor receives a full and fair share of the receipts of industry, but labor does not know it, will not accept the unsupported statement of management that it is true, and management does not, as it could, prove its case.

In a three way conversation in Chicago several years ago between an industrialist, a banker and myself, the banker said it it were not for the industrialist's wealth, labor would not have a job. I said I knew some of the industrialist's employees, and their conception was that it it were not for their work, the industrialist would not have the wealth; that unless the man of wealth found a way of satisfactorily demonstrating to his employees, something more than merely his word, that the employees were receiving a fair share of the returns from their work, the day would come when the one thousand workers to the one man of wealth would destroy the industrialist, and with his destruction they also would destroy themselves, and also that third party, the consumer, n.c.

Labor does get a fair share of what the workers produce, but labor must know that in a definite way. When that problem is solved, much of our industrial strife will be over.

WITH each passing year our varied interests become more and more one great national machine. Technology has meshed the gears of industry, of agriculture, of finance, of merchandising and, though the labor bosses do not admit it, of labor. The one thing needed to perfect our production and distribution machine is a governor. That governor must be supplied by statesmanship. Is congress capable of regulating the inteleacies of that complicated machine that is America of today? We wish to be shown.

LEND-LEASE cost us $50.032.000. 000. Of that we passed out to the that was fired, and the last surrender battleship "Missouri." It is time to start collecting a bit from here and there. Some of our deblors have at least promised to pay something, someume.

FAMILIARITY breeds contempt. We do not have the same respect for "Harry" that we have for "Mr.

President," PCA is but a slight rearrangement of the letters PAC without other er changes. Could Theodore Roosevell, Senators Hiram Johnson, Borah. Beverldge, the elder LaFollette and others of their day, but know who and what had taken over their cherished name of "Progressive," they would arise from their graves to protest and condemn.

THE PEOPLE now are asking, are we to have a less number of bureaucrais, or merely a new breed? What is wanted is a far less number.

Have you a collection of recipes for meatless meals? It's a bighelp...not only during Lent, but any time you want to cut your food bills. So today I'm going to tell you about some dishes that are real "collector's items." They're delicious, nutritious and economical...especially when you buy the ingredients at your A&P, where fine foods are thriftily priced.

Fruit in the Diet

Perhaps yours is one of those famflies which don't seem to require much in the way of dessert. This does appear to solve your menu planning, but it really doesn't solve a dietary problem.

One of the rules set down by nutrition authorities is that two fruits must be included in the daily diet worked in at brenkfast, but that leaves one other fruit for one of the other meals.

If your family tends to gain weight ensily, serve this fruit in its natural state - as a fresh apple, pear, cluster of grapes, etc. In this way you will not be adding any additional calories by serving the trult with sugar, cream, syrup, or any other highly calorie foods.

Should the family readily reach and attain its normal weight, you can easily serve fruit baked with sweetening, in puddings or in cakes, Or, it you have members in your family who must have richer, satisfying foods because they work hard, serve desserts like this frequently because they will not only gain starches and sugars from It, but also take in their fruit requirement, Baked apples are a simple dessert to zerve at this time of year, especially when they're pepped up with lemon. If you want to add something more substantial to the dessert of this lovely fruit, use gingerbrend which has been flavored with 2 tenspoons of grated orange rind added to the batter just after

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

T ALWAYS gives me the creeps when a married woman says fearfully to her husband: "Pete, what would the children and I do if you died?"

It seems ghoulish and unfeeling somehow, to put this problem to a normal cheerful man who is just starting off for the office after a good breakfast, or settling down for his evening paper under the lamp.

And yet it has to be asked somelmes, because the thought behind It is one that haunts even the most loving wife and mother. When every cent the family spends comes through the efforts of one man, and that man is only human, and subject to all the ills and accidents of day's living, then despite her healthy optimism and faith in the future, a voman has her anxious and puzzled moments on this particular subject.

There was a San Francisco woman who met and conquered this dragon n few years ago, with really exciting results. Her husband was a newspaper man, nervous, unreasonable, his rest and his system upset by the irregular hours and snatched downtown meals that are a part of his calling. There were three small boys in the family and a good strong helpful grandmother, and the house ran smoothly and happilyand economically, too.

Whether Philip was jedlous of his home and nursery world, or whether an increasing tendency on his part toward drinking and card-playing upset his common sense is uncertain, But certain It is that he grew more irritable, exacting and ill-tempered with every passing week, and finally began to snap at Von because she and her mother and the boys spent all the money that he slaved to earn. If they had to earn it, he said, they'd feel differently about it, She Bought Big Old Home.

Veronica Graham knew perfectly well that this was a phase; that Phil was overworked, tired, headnehy and fretted because two younger men had been given office promotions shead of him. She knew this would pass. But she also realized that to be the one bread-winner in a tamily of six really is too much of a strain for any man to bear, and she quietly completed a nursing course. During the war she made her steady $8 for an eight-hour day. Not sensational money, compared to Phil's $150 a week, but she banked it, and added it to other money she had saved, and two years ago she bought for $13,000 a roomy, handsome old place on the edge of town. Heat estate was low-priced then, and for her 11 simulary rooms and blg garden. Von lias been offered just three times that sum since,

However, she did not sell. She and her mother have with them now alx delicate children, and could have many more, but they stop at six. The gross income from this venture Is $750 a month. Von's mother, who was a leacher, is carrying forward the education of the four older ones, one of whom is a bone case and another a lovely girl of seven, almost blind. The three-year-old twins, orphans, run tree, This means an income for the older woman as well; a Chinese couple do the heavier work, and Philip is steadying

EXTRA INCOME Most families have to spend most of the father's earnings to maintain even a fair standard of living. There is little left over to save.

Mrs. Graham was one of those women who worried about her busband. He was earning a comfortable salary as a newspaper man, but his health was suffering from the strain of his work. He became more and more irritable and suffered frequent sick spells. With her own small savings she bought a big old mansion. Being a former nurse, she knew that there were many sickly children who would benefit by a stay in a well run convalescent home. With her mother's belp she now operates a home that takes in $750 a month. This extra income has changed the whole outlook for this family. Philip realizes that be does not have to struggle so furiously to earn every cent be can. Veronica knows that she now can face the future unafraid.

down into a much more normal and agreeable husband, in the relief of lessened strain.

Faced Problems Early. Veronica had to do this against the prejudices of both husband and mother, but from the beginning she seemed to see her way clear and went straight ahead. There were many hard and puzzling moments of course, but in any worth-while effort there are those, and Von only faced them in time, rather than walting until need and grief and panic were making any fresh start doubly hard. When a man invents a new dog food or ice-cream sandwich or radie program and sells it for four million, we hear of it with wonder and envy. Such a simple discovery and such a rich reward! But there are thousands of obscurer successes all about us, successes that don't bring in millions, but do bring in the comfortable thousands that mean a good home and pleasant work and sufficient recognition and, best of all, security.

There is no human being over the age of eight who doesn't want security. A humble home perhaps, simple meals, 10-cent movies and catalogue dresses at $0.39. But security. Kings have lived long lives without ever being sure of it; millions of men and women are seeth-Ing about in the oriental countries, in Europe Itself today longing only to be sure of the next meal, of shelter for the night-never daring to dream of a permanent sense of having always enough, Enough food, enough shelter, sufficient clothing, freedom from persecution-what heaven that would be today to six out of 10 of the world's peoples!

"Just a chance to work, Madam," said a starving European to me 20 years ago, "Just to be able to show what I could do!"

This chance is yours, as an American woman. It might pay you to consider first, and what you would do should the head of the house be stricken down, and secondly, whether the time to do it perhaps is now.

Higher Fur Prices Indications point to higher prices for desirable for skins and for garments later in the year, according to a statement by the Retail Manu-facturing Furriers of America, Inc. The organization said that labor costs will not be lower this year than in 1946 and cited the trend of prices at fur auctions and skin markels during the last 10 weeks, which it said has been upward. The organization held that merchants will "very likely" pay higher prices when they replace stocks later.

Bottles containing liquids will not spill when moving or travelling if the tops are sealed by dipping them in melted paraffin.

For a "slide-along" clothespin bag get heavy material and sew it on to a coat hanger. Hang it on the clothesline. This eliminates stooping for clothespins.

To keep casters which are used under furniture from coming loose, dip them in melted paraffin before placing them under the legs of chairs or tables. The broller pan cleans easier if

Improve Community. Johnson, Neb., has a 4-H mechanics club pledged to improvement of the home community. The club's biggest project has been the damming of a stream to create a community fishpond and recreation grounds. The recreation grounds were opened last summer with a blg fishing contest,

The 4-II mechanics also assumed responsibility for helping reduce fires. The village fire chief says there have been but two chimney fires in the past five years and those in homes not inspected by members of the club or the fire chief. The 4-11 members inspected and helped refill the fire extinguishers of the business places of Johnson.
